Nearly three years ago, Ohio State wrapped up one of the best recruiting classes in the program's history, which was brought in by the efforts of Urban Meyer and director of player personnel Mark Pantoni.

Fast forward three years and those highly touted recruits have become sought-after NFL draft prospects, with standouts J.K. Dobbins and Jeff Okudah announcing they will forgo their senior seasons and enter the pros.

The decisions of Shaun Wade and Chase Young are pending, but it is highly anticipated that Young will enter the 2020 NFL Draft as a top-three prospect. Other Buckeyes in the class include Baron Browning, Wyatt Davis, Haskell Garrett, Blake Haubeil, Tate Martell, Thayer Munford, Josh Myers, Isaiah Pryor, Amir Riep, Kendall Sheffield, Pete Werner and Brendon White.

This installment of BSB Reprints includes our coverage of the 2017 National Signing Day, and the talented class of Buckeyes brought in, which included Dobbins, Okudah, Wade and Young.
