

Mac Podraza Named B1G Setter Of The Week

Ohio State sophomore Mac Podraza was named Big Ten Setter of the Week on Monday, her fourth time claiming the award on the season. She helped lead the Buckeyes to a series sweep of Michigan over the weekend, as they improved to a whopping 15-1 record on the season.

She averaged 12.14 assists per set over the series, racking up a double double - 44 assists and 12 digs in a 3-1 win on Friday and followed that up with 41 assists and five blocks in a 3-0 sweep the next day. That was the 14th time this season that she's had at least 40 assists in a match.

Podraza leads the Buckeyes with 708 assists this season, roughly 10.7 per set on the year. She also has 130 digs (third on the team) and 37 blocks (fourths) with a .321 attacking rate.
