

Ohio State Guard Mya Perry Enters Transfer Portal

Ohio State freshman guard Mya Perry announced Wednesday that she will be entering the transfer portal after just one season in Columbus.

“First, I want to thank Columbus and everyone that has followed me throughout my journey, it has honestly been a great experience,” Perry said in a statement. “I want to thank The Ohio State University for the opportunity that they have given me. I will forever value and appreciate the memories that were made with my teammates.

“With that being said, I will be entering the transfer portal...I am excited for the journey that is ahead of me and I can’t wait to see what my future holds.”

Perry appeared in just six games this season with 19 total minutes played, with opportunities on the court few and far between due to Ohio State’s depth at guard. She played a season-high six minutes against McNeese State on Nov. 20, scoring a season-high 4 points.

She joined Ohio State out of Reynoldsburg (Ohio) Summit, where she is the program’s all-time leading scorer and three-point scorer. She also picked first-team all-state and all-conference recognition during her standout prep career.

While the Buckeyes will miss the depth at guard, they also received a boost on Wednesday, as guard Jacy Sheldon announced she will be returning to Ohio State for a fifth and final season in Columbus.
