The Buckeyes will be looking for their fifth straight win over the Spartans and eighth straight victory in East Lansing. Michigan State's last win in the series came in 2015, a 17-14 upset win over No. 2 Ohio State in Columbus, while the Spartans beaten the Buckeyes at home since 1999.

Ohio State, which sits a 4-0 and No. 3 in the AP and Coaches polls, should be heavily favored against Michigan State. The Spartans are 1-3 and play undefeated Northwestern this coming weekend, while the Buckeyes travel to 2-3 Illinois (12 p.m. on FS1).

The Big Ten's announcement means Ohio State will finish the season with four straight noon kickoffs, as the regular season will conclude with a 12 p.m. start against Michigan on FOX.
